they may pass through the catheter into the patient resulting in local inflammation or mechanical disruption.

In some cases, severe manic or depressive episodes may be accompanied by psychotic hallucinations.

Teas are generally not as effective because the active elements do not dissolve in water.